They started going to people's houses at dawn when everyone was sleeping and started RAIDING the house! People were confused as to what caused this outrage against the people. There was one thing wrong though. It was only the people from the islands getting arrested they didn't care about the English or the people from other countries only the islanders. Pretty weird huh, The Polynesians started to notice the problem and started taking it into their own hands.

They went out into the street and started protesting. Then a group merged called the Polynesian Panthers it was a movement against the government for all the racial activity going on. They believe there was no justice but instead there was injustice. It got so bad that people had to plan how to escape when the police come. But eventually it died down and the government even did an apology to the Polynesian community. So it all worked out in the end.
